Notes from Liessa...

Just wanted to remind everyone that there is NO SCHOOL this weekend. I hope everyone gets to enjoy Shabbat with their families. Since nobody will be hustling about trying to get out the door on Sunday morning and hearing my "all too familiar" Boker Tov!, I'm going to make a suggestion for your Saturday morning instead. Search your book shelves for a copy of an English translation of the Torah...or, if not, do what my 5 year old would suggest; Google it! There are actually lots of great resources on the web for finding and talking about the Torah parsha for the week. I can even suggest you try out: <http://urj.org/learning/torah/> .

This week's parsha is Mishpatim: The Laws. It actually seems quite fitting in many ways. As we celebrate our past President's this weekend, let us remember that they helped us have laws and a foundation for how to live as good citizens. This week's parsha helps teach us some of the laws we follow as Jews. As one of my great Torah teachers use to say..."There's lots of good stuff in there, you just need to spend the time to look!" Go spend some time with each other!

Enjoy your time as families and I look forward to seeing everyone next week! Drop me a line and let me know what you learned as you talked about the parsha as a family over the weekend.

Shabbat Shalom,
Liessa
